

Dallas Business Journal Names Carrington Coleman As “Best Places To Work In North Texas”

---

October 12, 2021

Carrington Coleman, a full-service law firm based in North Texas, has been named by the Dallas Business Journal as one of its 2021 “Best Places to Work in North Texas.” These awards are based solely on the input of employees, who elect to provide anonymous feedback by completing a survey about their job, work environment, and employer.

“Carrington Coleman has received many awards in our 51 years. This might just be my favorite because this honor comes straight from the heart of our firm – our employees,” said Managing Partner Monica Latin. “We are proud that the inclusive culture our founders created over 50 years ago continues today, even through a worldwide pandemic, and look forward to continuing to have a warm and welcoming workplace for years to come.”

The Dallas Business Journal chooses the top 100 workplaces in North Texas based on employee engagement surveys conducted by Quantum Workplace. Companies are then placed in categories based on employee count: micro, small, medium, large, and extra-large.