Sweating the small stuff. Thinking ahead. Answering quickly and correctly. I treat the client's problem like it's mine, with less talk, more action.

Parker Graham practices business litigation and employment law throughout the United States. From routine discovery disputes to high-stakes appeals, his experience includes an array of complex business disputes, agency investigations, and discrimination and retaliation cases across the country.

Parker specializes in federal practice and procedure. And he has extensive experience handling emergency injunctive relief, especially involving non-competition and non-solicitation agreements. Beyond litigation, Parker routinely counsels clients on regulatory and compliance issues.

Significant Matters

Business Litigation

- Routinely represented parties pursuing or opposing emergency injunctive relief in state and federal court.
- Won an eight-figure arbitration award in a complex contract dispute between business partners.
- Obtained a seven-figure arbitration award and permanent injunction against independent distributors for breach of contract and tortious interference.

Employment Litigation / Agency Investigations

- Routinely defended employers and management in discrimination and retaliation cases across the country, including state and federal courts in Texas, Louisiana, Colorado, Georgia, Florida, Iowa, and Oklahoma.
- Represented an automotive-engineering firm in an OSHA investigation alleging whistleblower retaliation.
- Represented an oil-and-gas company in a Department of Labor investigation alleging unpaid overtime and off-the-clock work for large groups of employees in three states.
