Robert Fountain is a commercial litigator whose practice focuses on insurance recovery. In addition to representing commercial policyholders in all stages of litigation, Robby conducts comprehensive insurance program reviews and advises policyholders through every step of their insurance claims.

Known for his tenacity and exceptional writing skills, Robby is adept at spotting inconsistencies others overlook, a skill that regularly saves his clients time and money. His eye for detail and affinity for problem-solving, combined with his ability to quickly master complex legal issues, allow him to anticipate issues long before they arise and distill in-depth analysis into valuable advice for his clients. Robby's economics background informs his understanding of insurance as a business and the solutions he crafts for clients.

Robby's skills as a coverage lawyer also make him an exceptional contract lawyer. He has represented clients in contract disputes involving software licensing, employment contracts, service agreements, and mineral/royalty interests. His attention to detail is particularly valuable when drafting settlement agreements.
